ARIZONA EARNS D GRADE FOR TEACHER POLICIES IN NEW EDITION OF NATIONAL YEARBOOK

STATE DEMONSTRATES DECLINE IN STATE TEACHER POLICIES SINCE 2015

Washington, DC--Today, the National Council on Teacher Quality (NCTQ) released its bi-annual 2017 State Teacher Policy Yearbook, finding that states' previous rapid progress to modernize their teacher policies has slowed considerably. Arizona's overall grade for its teaching policies went from a C- grade in 2015 to a D in 2017. By comparison, the overall grade nationally stagnated, staying at a C- grade.

From 2007 until 2015, most states took aggressive steps to improve the teaching profession. However, since the last edition of the Yearbook in 2015, few states have initiated any new actions to improve their policies guiding how teachers are selected, prepared, evaluated, and retained. As a result, state grades have mostly stagnated, with more state grades decreasing than at any other time in the Yearbook's history.

This year, among all 50 states and the District of Columbia, 42 states earned a higher grade than Arizona, four states performed as well as Arizona, and four states earned a lower grade. Florida and Louisiana each earned a B+, the highest grade in this year's Yearbook.

"States' teacher policies have an enormous impact on the quality of education in the state," said Elizabeth Ross, Managing Director of State Policy at NCTQ. "By highlighting opportunities for improvement, as well as strong policies, this Yearbook is designed to catalyze state action. We know the progress states are capable of making and urge them to do so. Teachers and students deserve nothing less."

Arizona has several key opportunities for growth. In its 2017 Yearbook, NCTQ reported that the state earned F grades in Elementary Teacher Preparation, Secondary Teacher Preparation, and Special Education Teacher Preparation. It earned a D- grade in Alternate Route Teacher Preparation and in Hiring.

Among all 37 graded goals in the 2017 Yearbook, the only goal Arizona fully meets is in linking teacher evaluation to professional growth. This is a rare bright spot in the state's teacher policies.
