NORTH DAKOTA EARNS D GRADE FOR TEACHER POLICIES IN NEW EDITION OF NATIONAL YEARBOOK

STATE DEMONSTRATES NO CHANGE IN STATE TEACHER POLICIES TO IMPROVE TEACHER QUALITY SINCE 2015

Washington, DC--Today, the National Council on Teacher Quality (NCTQ) released its bi-annual 2017 State Teacher Policy Yearbook, finding that states' previous rapid progress to modernize their teacher policies has largely slowed. North Dakota's overall grade for its teaching policies remained unchanged at a D, the same grade it earned in the 2015 State Teacher Policy Yearbook. By comparison, the overall grade nationally between 2015 and 2017 remained unchanged, staying at a C- grade.

From 2007 until 2015, most states took aggressive steps to improve the teaching profession. However, since the last edition of the Yearbook in 2015, few states have initiated any new actions to improve their policies guiding how teachers are selected, prepared, evaluated, and retained. As a result, state grades have mostly stagnated, with more state grades decreasing than at any other time in the Yearbook's history.

This year, among all 50 states and the District of Columbia, 42 states earned a higher grade than North Dakota, four states performed as well as North Dakota, and four states earned a lower grade. Florida and Louisiana both earned B+ grades, the highest in this year's Yearbook.

"States' teacher policies have an enormous impact on the quality of education in the state," said Elizabeth Ross, Managing Director of State Policy at NCTQ. "By highlighting opportunities for improvement, as well as strong policies, this Yearbook is designed to catalyze state action. We know the progress states are capable of making and urge them to do so. Teachers and students deserve nothing less."

North Dakota has several key opportunities for growth. In its 2017 Yearbook, NCTQ reported that the state earned an F for its policies related to Elementary Teacher Preparation, Special Education Teacher Preparation, and Retaining Effective Teachers. The state also earned a D for its policies related to General Teacher Preparation, Alternative Route Teacher Preparation, and Teacher Compensation.

North Dakota earned its highest grades for its policies related to Hiring and Teacher and Principal Evaluation where it earned a C- for both policy areas.
