OREGON EARNS D- GRADE FOR TEACHER POLICIES IN NEW EDITION OF NATIONAL YEARBOOK

STATE DEMONSTRATES DECLINE IN ITS STATE TEACHER POLICIES TO IMPROVE TEACHER QUALITY SINCE 2015

Washington, DC--Today, the National Council on Teacher Quality (NCTQ) released its bi-annual 2017 State Teacher Policy Yearbook, finding that states' previous rapid progress to modernize their teacher policies has largely slowed. Oregon's overall grade for its teaching policies decreased from a D in 2015 to a D- in 2017. By comparison, during this same time period the overall grade nationally remained unchanged, staying at a C- grade.

From 2007 until 2015, most states took aggressive steps to improve the teaching profession. However, since the last edition of the Yearbook in 2015, few states have initiated any new actions to improve their policies guiding how teachers are selected, prepared, evaluated, and retained. As a result, state grades have mostly stagnated, with more state grades decreasing than at any other time in the Yearbook's history.

This year, among all 50 states and the District of Columbia, 47 states earned a higher grade than Oregon, one state performed as well as Oregon, and two states earned a lower grade. Florida and Louisiana both earned B+ grades, the highest in this year's Yearbook.

"States' teacher policies have an enormous impact on the quality of education in the state," said Elizabeth Ross, Managing Director of State Policy at NCTQ. "By highlighting opportunities for improvement, as well as strong policies, this Yearbook is designed to catalyze state action. We know the progress states are capable of making and urge them to do so. Teachers and students deserve nothing less."

Oregon has several key opportunities for growth. In its 2017 Yearbook, NCTQ reported that the state earned an F for its policies related to Special Education Teacher Preparation, Alternate Route Teacher Preparation, and Hiring. The state also earned a D- for its policies related to Elementary Teacher Preparation and Teacher Compensation, and earned a D for its policies related to Teacher and Principal Evaluation and Retaining Effective Teachers.

Oregon earned its highest grade, a C-, for its policies related to General Teacher Preparation.
